To Whom It May Concern:

Starry Eyes Media supports continued exploration of the Mount Hope Heritage & Visitor Connectivity Pilot as a promising community heritage, public communication, and rural connectivity initiative led by Carrie Kidd of Harmony for Hope and Kidd's Technical Services.

Carrie's work reflects a serious effort to use emerging, community-centered technology to keep economic value, local governance, and cultural heritage rooted here in West Virginia. Based on our conversations and shared commitment to accessible public communication, regional stewardship, and locally-grounded innovation, I believe the project more than merits further consideration, partnership development, and appropriate support from civic, nonprofit, educational, and economic development partners.

Our current support is limited to the concept and partnership-development stage. This statement does not constitute technical certification, security review, final product endorsement, financial commitment, implementation commitment, or any written agreement by Starry Eyes Media.

Starry Eyes stands behind Carrie Kidd's commitment to community-centered innovation and believes the initiative deserves serious consideration and investment.
